The Korean Society of Stress Medicine

The International College of Psychosomatic Medicine

Invitation

Dear Colleagues,

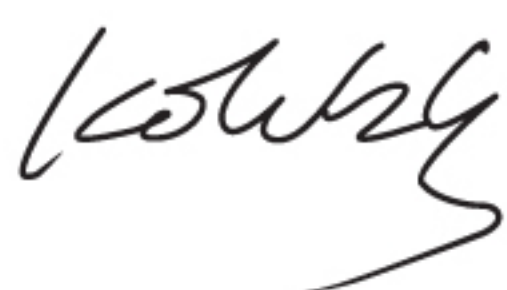

On behalf of the Organizing Committee, we're pleased to announce that the 21st World Congress on Psychosomatic Medicine will be held in Seoul, Korea, August 25-28, 2011.

Colleagues from around the world are invited to exchange advanced knowledge of the interaction between mind and body and the mechanisms of diseases. We also plan to have you get an opportunity to explore and discuss a variety of issues in basic and clinical research relevant to stress, psychosomatic medicine, primary care, and other various clinical problems we can share. In addition, we are going to extend our topics to areas beyond science and borders, as the main theme of the Congress suggests. And of course, we would like to offer you the opportunity to get together with old friends and colleagues, as well as becoming acquainted with new ones.

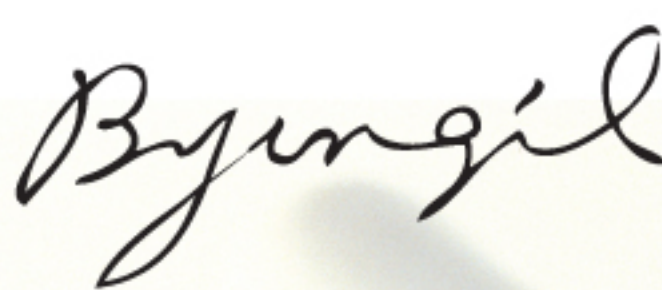

Seoul has become a favorite destination for international conventions because of its state-of-the-art conference facilities, services and wide range of accommodations. With 5,000 years of history, participants can enjoy both traditional Korean culture and a technologically advanced metropolitan city.

We cordially invite you to join us and be part of this emerging, inter-disciplinary field at the 21st World Congress on Psychosomatic Medicine. We hope that you will take this chance to explore one of the most exciting and wonderful countries in the world. We are looking forward to seeing you in Seoul, 2011.

Sincerely,

Kyung-Bong Koh, MD, PhD

Congress Venue: National Museum of Korea

Welcome to Seoul, Korea

Korea is an amazing country full of grand mystique, intriguing culture, joyful excitement and stunning natural beauty. Through its 5,000 year history, Korea has developed a truly distinct culture, even while interacting with the larger nations surrounding it. UNESCO has so far named eight Korean sites to the World heritage list, of which there are various natural beauty spots. Over the past four decades, Korea's impressive economic growth has been described as the East Asian miracle. Korea has more recently become known as an IT powerhouse, with an information infrastructure which has expanded to cover the whole country. Korea looks set to improve its overall business environment to emerge as Northeast Asia's new business hub.

Seoul, the capital city of Korea

Seoul has been the capital city of Korea for more than 600 years since the Joseon Dynasty and is the hearts of Korea's politics, economy, society and culture. There are a number of invaluable cultural assets in Seoul, a region encompassing cultural highlights of the northern and southern areas of the Peninsula. Tradition and modernity, as well as nature and people harmoniously coexist in this city. Korea is served by Incheon International Airport. Opened in 2001, the state-of-art airport continues to win the praise of professionals and travelers alike with a variety of transportation and accommodation options available.

National Museum of Korea

A window to the history of Korea, the National Museum of Korea preserves and displays Korean culture heritage. It is the largest museum in Korea, proudly exhibiting not only Korean cultural artifacts but also works of art from across Asia. After being relocated to a brand new building in Yongsan in 2005, it has evolved into a world-class cultural complex that features various lecture rooms and exhibition halls. Many events including cultural performances, international conferences and academic symposia are frequently held there. The ICPM 2011 will provide you with unique experiences to learn up-to-date knowledge from outstanding specialists in various fields as well as the chance to understand Korean traditional culture and history at the National Museum of Korea.
